Editorial Comment

GREAT interest has been manifested in the educational world upon the statement that one-half of the million college and university students in the United States are in 600 small colleges, the others being in State universities and in large private universities. While the State universities and private universities have three-fourths of the capital funds, the 600 small colleges only have one-fourth. This indicates a grossly unequal division. If the State universities and private universities with three-fourths of the capital behind them are still calling for more endowment what must be the situation with the 600 small colleges, whose capital funds are only one-fourth of what these universities have at their command? It means that the small college is struggling. Yet, the consensus of opinion is that the liberal arts college in America is a unique contributor to higher education. "These small colleges," said President Hoover, "are the seed beds of leadership." Nothing could be more true than this statement. The presidents of the great universities admit that the function of the small college cannot be dispensed with.

A disturbing thought is the fact that a number of these small liberal arts colleges are in danger of passing out of the picture for lack of funds, which would mean an incalculable loss to the country. History has shown that the President is right and that the small liberal arts college is truly the seed bed of leadership. These colleges afford the best means of individual development. Contact with the faculty and more intimate contact with their fellow students provide these young men with opportunities which are impossible in the large universities where the individual is swallowed up in vast numbers, and education itself is of the mass variety. Whatever advantages there may be in mass production in manufacturing plants, such advantages do not obtain when it comes to the matter of education. With the leading educators of this country, heads of the great universities, feeling as they do about the liberal arts college, it seems strange that people of large means do not catch the idea and see to it that the small colleges may be assured of continuance unhampered by the poverty in which they find themselves so that their contribution to the leadership of this country may in no sense be impaired.

Alumni

THE New Executive Committee of the Alumni Association named in pursuance of the amendment to the Constitution of the Association, held its initial meeting at the Library building on Home-Coming Day. It was little more than an organization meeting but was attended by all of the Committee except two. The function of this Committee was discussed and the conclusion reached that it would meet considerably in advance of the general meeting of the Association at Commencement and formulate plans and make suggestions of matters which the Committee deemed important to the Association and to the College; that such suggestions or plans would be transmitted to the different Alumni Chapters so that they might also discuss them and when the general meeting of the Alumni Association takes place at Commencement, these matters would have been thoroughly digested so that intelligent action could be taken thereon. This Committee felt that the Alumni should be entitled to make suggestions and to be consulted about various policies affecting the College. For example, it was stated that when the spelling of the name of the College was changed some years ago, it was something that the Alumni felt they would have liked to have had some chance to consider and approve or disapprove. As one member of the Committee stated, he had received his diploma from Hampden-Sydney with the spelling "Sidney" instead of "Sydney." To the suggestion that the substitution of a "y" for an "i" was a matter of no particular moment, the answer was promptly made that it was considered of sufficient concern to have the post-office department make the change. It was also brought out that for many years the letters awarded to athletes for proficiency were "H S" and that a few years ago, the "S" was dropped and the letter "H" alone used. The Committee, without seeking to say whether these changes should have been made or not, simply took the view that when such changes are to be made, they, the Alumni, would like to have some say in the matter. Questions of considerable importance are constantly arising in which the Alumni would be interested and without any desire to dictate the policy, they would like to have some voice and be entitled to at least make suggestions. The Alumni support is constantly being asked for. It might be said that the support given has not been what it should be, but it was felt that there was no better way to tie up the Alumni and the College than by giving them an opportunity to give vocal expression to their views on the matters pertaining to certain policies of the institution.

AFTER a lapse of more than twenty-five years, Sigma Chi Chapter of Sigma Chi has been reestablished at Hampden-Sydney. This Chapter was first established at Hampden-Sydney in 1872, and after thirty years of successful life on the campus when it drew to itself some of the best men entering college, it ceased to function, owing to the rapidly shrinking attendance at the College. While on the active list, it turned out a number of men who have made records of high distinction in the field of law, medicine, ministry, and business. Certain old members of the Chapter had never ceased to hope and work for its reestablishment at Hampden-Sydney, and with the attendance at the College twice what it was in the days when the old Chapter flourished and the institution showing new vigor, their efforts were successful and the convention of the general fraternity at Cincinnati last summer decided to restore the charter. For some years a local organization known as Phi Sigma Epsilon had been under the observation and tutelage of Sigma Chi, and on the fourth of December, these men and others who had formerly belonged to the local organization were duly initiated. Distinguished representatives of the fraternity from distant parts came to take part in the reestablishment of this Chapter. THE RECORD takes occasion to extend its congratulations to the local group and to the College itself at having this fine fraternity once more on the campus and bespeaks for the revived Chapter a long, uninterrupted, and successful career. It is hoped that the time may be not far distant when Beta Theta Pi, Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Gamma Delta, whose Chapters, for the same reason, disappeared from the active list of fraternities in the College and approximately at the same time as Sigma Chi, will also be able to answer adsum when the roll of fraternities on the campus is called.

From the Dean's Office

THE final word in regard to enrollment: the last man to sign the register was number three hundred and two. Very often enrollment and attendance differ considerably, but to date only three students have dropped out. This augurs well for a high average attendance.

Quality and quantity do not always go together, but this record-breaking freshman class in all respects seems the equal of any of its predecessors. Seventy of them at least know what they want to make of themselves. Twenty-three are preparing to go into medicine and dentistry, fourteen into law, six into engineering, five into the ministry, five into teaching, three into journalism, two into military service, and twelve into various branches of business.

At the fall elections of O. D. K. the following active members were elected:

Thomas L. Toone, '31, Richmond, Va.
Hugh P. Powell, Jr., '31, Richmond, Va.
James W. Gordon, '31, Bon Air, Va.
Edward J. Nottingham, III, '32, Culpeper, Va.
John L. Bruner, '32, Charleston, W. Va.
Joe T. Perry, '31, Charleston, W. Va.
Handy Moore, '31, Prospect, Va.

There have been also initiated during the fall the following honorary members:

J. William Dunnington, '11, Farmville, Va.
Robert F. Hutcheson, '98, Charlotte Court House, Va.
Thomas J. McIlwaine, '14, Farmville, Va.
Charles D. Hurt, '17, Roanoke, Va.
Henry T. Holladay, '22, Baltimore, Md.
T. J. Roller, President, Augusta Military Academy, Fort Defiance, Va.

While Hampden-Sydney has been a member of the Southern Association for many years, for several years she has not been in very good standing, failing to meet several of the requirements of the Association; especially the endowment requirement. Such an institution is marked with a star in the published list of the Association. At the recent meeting of the Association in Montgomery the special committee which has charge of such matters after a careful investigation of the present condition of the College recommended that the star be dropped from its name, and Hampden-Sydney now stands fully approved.

Length of Service

By J. D. EGGLESTON

IN the October Alumni RECORD the length of service of Dr. Walter Blair, Professor L. L. Holladay, Professor J. R. Thornton, Dr. W. H. Whiting and Dr. J. H. C. Bagby was given.

The service of Dr. H. C. Brock as a teacher is most interesting. He taught a private school in King William County, Virginia, 1867-69; he next attended the University of Virginia, and in 1871-72 was assistant to Colonel W. E. Peters of the Chair of Latin at the University; from 1872-1879 he was associate in Kenmore Academy, Amherst, Virginia; in 1879-81 he was associate in the Charlottesville, Virginia, High School; from 1881-1886 he was Headmaster of the University School at Charlottesville, Virginia.

Professor Brock was then called to Hampden-Sydney College and, in the years 1886-89, he was Professor of English, Political Science, and History; he was Professor of Greek and French 1889-1911; he was Professor of Greek 1911-1918; and was Professor Emeritus of Greek 1918-1928.

This is a wonderful record of service. It was said of Professor Holladay that in his day he could have filled any Chair in the College. Dr. Whiting's versatility in this respect was mentioned in the October RECORD. It is safe to say that no professor has ever taught at Hampden-Sydney with a more varied and accurate scholarship than Dr. Brock.

In this connection it is not out of place to mention the record of Dr. Charles Henry Winston, a distinguished graduate of the Class of 1854. In 1850 he was invited by Professor Donald Harrison to continue his studies under him and to be his assistant teacher at Warren Green Academy at Warrenton, Virginia. He filled this position 1850-51.

He entered Hampden-Sydney 1851 and graduated in 1854. In 1854-55 he was Principal of Hampden-Sydney Academy and assistant instructor in ancient languages in the College. In 1855-56 and 1856-57 he took post-graduate work at the University of Virginia, obtaining the degree of Master of Arts, and tutored while a student there.

In 1857-58 he was Professor of Ancient Languages in Transylvania University, Lexington, Kentucky; in 1858-59 he was a teacher in the Richmond Female Institute, and Vice President of the Institution. He was made President of this Institute and occupied this position as President and teacher until the fall of 1873. But there was an intermission in his teaching, as he was engaged as a specialist in 1863-64-65 in the Nitre Bureau of the Confederate States at Charlotte, North Carolina.

In 1873 he was made Professor of Physics and Astronomy in Richmond College. In 1898 he gave up his work in Physics and continued as Professor of Astronomy.

But this does not tell the whole story of his versatility and his teaching activities. In 1875-76 he took Dr. J. L. M. Curry's place as Professor of English, teaching junior and senior English; in the second half of 1879-80 he taught intermediate, junior and senior English in Richmond College; and in 1885-86 he taught intermediate English.

On the death of Dr. Thomas, he taught Philosophy in Richmond College the latter part of the year 1900. At different periods from 1874-1898 he had classes in the Richmond Woman's College, and in 1877-78 he had classes in Miss Jessie Gordon's School. He taught at the Powell School 1897-98 and 1898-99; and he taught at McGuire's School 1889-90.

It has been said of Dr. Winston either that he taught every subject in Richmond College, or that he was capable of doing so.

In addition to this amazing record, must be added the fact that his great interest in public education and his great ability as a teacher caused him to be drafted as a teacher in State normal schools from 1884-1903. The record shows that he taught in twenty of these schools.

And in order not to waste his time he was in great demand as a lecturer, and gave a great many lectures on at least a dozen different topics.

Dr. Winston was born August 21, 1831. He passed out April 28, 1918, with one of the most remarkable records in educational history.

A Statistical Orgy

By D. M. ALLAN

AFTER the initial pangs of nostalgia had subsided within Freshman bosoms, each newcomer to Alma Mater this Fall was inhospitably subjected to a two-hour battery of standard intelligence and personality tests. This year we used the American Council Psychological Examination with norms based on 36,479 students in 137 colleges. Thus we have a fair basis of comparison. Since the present Freshman Class is the largest in the history of the College, the effect of expansion on quality is of especial interest.

Our Freshmen might well be a cross-section of American college students, so close do they run to the general medians, deciles and other comparative scores of these 36,000 national Freshmen. I have before me a curve of distribution of mental ability of our first year men drawn on top of a similar curve for the 137 colleges and it is almost impossible to see any advantage either way. As compared with the twenty-five Southern colleges listed, however, our Freshmen are distinctly superior. Our median is about twenty-five points above the median of Southern college medians listed; while only four out of the twenty-five, including Vanderbilt and Sophie Newcomb, exceed our central score. The poorer showing of Southern colleges doubtless reflects lower entrance requirements, backward development of schools and libraries and, perhaps, smaller urban population. Our own city boys (60 out of 115) run twenty points higher than the median of their entire class. The reason for this, probably, is that the standard intelligence tests of the day are "speed tests" and the pace of city life, as well as superior city schooling, are apt to sharpen the city boy's wits. The country or small town boy, however, often compensates by superior persistence or mental power. Thus, of our last seven valedictorians, only one came from a city of over 10,000.

Of our 115 Freshmen tested, the fifteen cases of "only child" are twenty-seven points above average; the thirty-three cases of "small family" (less than three children) are twenty points above average; the thirty cases from families of five to nine children are twenty points below average, although one of the very brightest of the Freshmen is one of a family of nine. You may draw both eutheic and eugenic conclusions. As to fraternity affiliations: despite the keenest rushing season on record (as we always say), the eighty-one new men pledged to fraternities this Fall gave slightly lower comparative scores than their class as a whole, while a majority of the most mentally alert Freshmen went unpledged, with the notable exception of the two top men. It may be of interest to note here that sixty-five per cent. of our graduates and Alumni in Who's Who listed themselves as members of social fraternities. More than three-fourths of these came from four well-known nationals and fully a fourth from one.

From what classes do our Freshmen come? Business men's sons—forty; doctors' sons—sixteen; ministers' thirteen; engineers'—eleven; lawyers'—eight; farmers'—ten; teachers'—five; clerks'—four; dentists'—three. The sons of teachers, ministers and lawyers led in intelligence, save that the tiny group of dentists' sons, too small to be strictly comparable, led all the tribe. About two-thirds of our Freshmen are High School products and have a distinct lead over the Prep School graduates.

Analysis of the personality tests (Thurstone Personality Schedule) discloses that our Freshmen are on the whole well-adjusted, or a little better than average in "emotional adjustment." Twenty are "emotionally mal-adjusted" to some extent, but only five seriously so. It is interesting to note that Freshmen who are "the only child" have a median exactly normal; those from small families are slightly above normal; while those from large families show a median six points below normal. The brightest ten per cent. of the Freshmen are not "eccentric" but as a group are to be labelled "well-adjusted emotionally." As to specific complexes, two-thirds of our Freshmen "get stage fright"; twenty-three per cent. believe they are "usually unlucky" (the pessimists); while thirty-seven per cent. testify that "their feelings are easily hurt." (Perhaps by the Faculty).

These sundry and divers data should be taken with a grain of salt, both because of the fallibility of the tests and the limited numbers tested. Nevertheless, we may justly conclude that our student body is still being recruited from excellent stock and that we are not as yet sacrificing quality to quantity. There is one point to ponder, however. Despite the good comparative showing, at least five per cent. of our Freshmen are not intellectually fitted for a liberal arts college of high standards and if allowed to enter are a sheer deadweight. If we are to turn away forty or fifty students, as we did this Fall, our entrance requirements should be raised so that we can select none but worthy material.

SOCIAL

ASA D. WATKINS

THE most brilliant social event of the season was Mrs. Lacy's fire. The fire was in joint celebration of On-from-Richmond and of Mrs. Lacy's ninety-seventh (or was it seventy-ninth?) birthday; and the fire consisted of Mrs. Lacy's barn and servant's quarters. Extreme enthusiasts over the Richmond game thought of contributing the residence too (of such was Dr. Bagby who descended from his rooms bearing the Faculty Minute Book); but by two o'clock A. M., it was decided that the celebration had been adequate without the residence, especially as the Minute Book had been saved.

All the three hundred (see next Catalogue) were invited to the fire, and others came. In fact there has been some sensitiveness on the part of those to whom it could be casually remarked next morning, "Didn't see you at Mrs. Lacy's fire last night." Violet, cook, observed that, "Eve'y lady on de Hill was at dat fire." Question: Who was not at the fire?

The receiving line extended from the basement water spigot clear across the lawn. Mrs. Junkin served the punch. Many were in full evening dress (the fire was at twelve at night)—some of the students decollarte. Coach Bernier was the belle of the ball, and was somewhat groggy next day because he tried to serve something besides water at Mrs. Lacy's celebration; Coach set off a chemical sky-rocket extinguisher upside down and it made a touch-down-up of Coach!

There are many other social events, but the Depression prevents the publication of any except the most important. Professor Whiting counts the words. He was not at Mrs. Lacy's fire.

Reestablishment of Sigma Chi Fraternity at Hampden-Sydney

By A. F. HUDGINS, '28

TWENTY-FOUR Sigma Chi Chapters in fourteen states sent representatives to Hampden-Sydney College early in December for the three day celebration in connection with the revival of the Sigma Sigma Chapter, which has been inactive for thirty years. Daniel Laurence, Vice President of the University of Cincinnati and twenty-sixth Grand Consul of the Fraternity, presided as installing officer.

Twenty-six members of the Phi Sigma Epsilon Fraternity, nine of them Alumni, were initiated into the Fraternity following the ritualistic examination on December 3d, and the formal exercises on December 4th. These exercises were held in McIlwaine Hall.

The climax of the celebration was the installation banquet, held at the Weyanoke hotel in Farmville at six-thirty o'clock, with Ex-Governor E. Lee Trinkle, class of 1896, as toastmaster. The old charter, granted to the chapter here in 1872, was presented to Sigma Sigma Chapter by Dr. Joseph C. Nate, Grand Historian of the Fraternity, who gave a dramatic description of its whereabouts since it was returned to the Grand Headquarters in 1902.

Dr. Matthew B. Porter, ('86), an alumnus of the old Sigma Sigma Chapter, and now President of the Richmond Alumni Chapter of Sigma Chi, made an impressive speech in accepting the care of the charter. Dr. Porter was celebrating his seventieth birthday the night of the banquet, and was honored with a token of appreciation from his Richmond brothers who were present in a body for the occasion.

Active in the installation of the new chapter, besides Dr. Laurence of Cincinnati, were the following:

Grand Trustee, Hamilton Douglas, Jr., of Atlanta, Georgia; Grand Editor, Chester W. Cleveland, of Chicago; Grand Secretary, George D. Luther, of Chicago; Grand Historian, Joseph C. Nate, of Chicago; Grand Praetor, J. Spencer Bell, of Charlotte, North Carolina; Past Grand Consul, Joseph T. Miller, of Wilkesburg, Pennsylvania; Past Grand Praetor, Clyde F. Ross, of Richmond; Grand Praetor, Harold M. Gilmore, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and Grand Praetor, Wm. B. Ricks, of Clarksville, Tennessee.

Ex-Governor E. Lee Trinkle, of Roanoke, and Dr. Matthew B. Porter, of Richmond, were the only Alumni of the old Sigma Sigma Chapter present for the revival ceremonies.

Although the chapter lived here only thirty years, it has turned out over a dozen nationally known men. The old chapter, in spite of the fact that it has been dormant since 1902, still leads the list of fraternities at Hampden-Sydney with Alumni in Who's Who. To date the chapter has twelve names on the Who's Who roll.

The chapter at Hampden-Sydney is the ninety-second active chapter of the Fraternity. Sigma Chi has nineteen inactive chapters, seventy-eight Alumni chapters and twelve Alumni Associations. It was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in June 1855. The Sigma Sigma Chapter is in the sixth oldest college in the United States in which the Fraternity is represented. This chapter was originally the twenty-fourth established by the national organization.

Alumni of Phi Sigma Epsilon who were initiated include Dr. D. Maurice Allan, Hampden-Sydney, Virginia; Dr. W. Herman Bell, Hampden-Sydney, Virginia; Rev. Thomas C. Cook, Salisbury, North Carolina; John M.

Leonidas Williams, John David Withrow, Jr., and Louis Quarles Yowell.

Thus, after a lapse of a quarter of a century or more, Sigma Sigma Chapter of Sigma Chi has been established at Hampden-Sydney. It will ever be the aim of the chapter to measure up to the high standard set by the earlier brothers.

Active and Alumni Members Initiated Into Sigma Sigma Chapter of Sigma Chi

First Meeting of the New Executive Committee

THE Initial Meeting of the New Executive Committee of fifteen was held at Home-Coming on October 24th. It is significant that thirteen of the members were on the grounds and an even dozen of them were in the meeting which was held in the College Library.

The President of the General Alumni Association, Robert K. Brock, and the General Secretary of the Association, George L. Walker, were invited to identify themselves with the committee and they were duly chosen Chairman and Secretary, respectively.

Wyndham B. Blanton who "fathered" the amendment to the Constitution that created the New Executive Committee, spoke on the functions of the group. His idea was that the present Committee is to act somewhat as a steering committee of the General Alumni Association. He spoke of the value of the organization in maintaining the traditions of the College, citing such matters as the spelling of "Hampden-Sydney"; the change in the athletic award; and the amalgamation of the Literary Societies. He believes the committee can give a direct stimulus to the work of the Alumni Association in furthering the highest welfare of the College.

The Dix Plan of holding class reunions was adopted. (The principle of the plan is that, in groups of four, classes

Doctor Squires' New Book

By J. D. EGGLESTON

THE LAND OF DECISION

IN the fall of 1928 a discriminating reading public was delighted with "The Days of Yester-Year," by Dr. W. H. T. Squires of Norfolk. It treated of Virginia, and with a freshness and strength that were unusual. It was a book about Virginia, and its pages were redolent of an heroic past; it told of ancient homesteads, it described colonial customs with a vividness and sympathy that were remarkable; it delighted with half-forgotten, or wholly-forgotten, traditions.

The reading public called for more, and in the fall of 1929 appeared "Through Centuries Three," which is a short history of the people of Virginia, told in a way absolutely unique. One would not have believed that an author could sketch one hundred and thirty executives of Virginia without producing a book that would be statistical and tiresome. This book was neither. It is one of those rare books in which, when one chapter has been read, the appetite calls for the next.

And now, in the fall of 1931 appears a third volume, "The Land of Decision," and it is impossible to praise it too highly. It not only equals the two former volumes, but, if possible, it surpasses them.

The book takes its name from the decision at Yorktown and the decision at Appomattox. The author is a historian, who tries to get at the actual truth, and in every instance cites his authorities; but he is far more than a historian, for in the field of moving description and in the field of interpretation he is unsurpassed. He has produced history with a rare literary touch.

which were in College at the same time, will hold their reunions simultaneously. The Chart with Explanation is reproduced in this issue.)

On motion of Dr. Frank S. Johns, it was decided to hold another meeting of the Committee before Commencement in 1932. At this spring meeting, a program for the Annual meeting of the General Association will be made and plans adopted for the betterment of the Alumni work through the organized Chapters.

The keen interest and enthusiasm evidenced by the Committee members indicate vigorous leadership, and it is felt that Alumni work will be greatly strengthened and stimulated as a result of the formation of the new Committee.

Dr. Squires does not hesitate to put in the probe. In many instances he brings out facts that do not redound to the credit of those who helped to make Virginia history; and, unlike much of the literary fashion of to-day, there is not a coarse or unclean or vituperative paragraph, or sentence, or word in these books. It was said of Thomas Nelson Page that he never wrote a line that would cause a blush; and the same thing may be said of Dr. Squires.

We hope he will continue to write in these fields in which he is so thoroughly at home.

From the College Physician

THE chief interest in our work so far this session has centered around the "Digestive Disturbance Department" as it was cleverly put by one of the Tiger reporters. Indeed there were so many such disturbances just after college opened, presumably due in part at least to the extreme heat, that the President requested the College Physician to make a survey of the situation with a view to determining the cause and suggesting a remedy.

This the College Physician proceeded to do, including in the survey an interview with each boarding house manager, a study of their menus, and the furnishing them with a model diet for students.

The conclusions from the survey were as follows: (1) Our students are too bountifully fed; (2) they eat too rapidly; (3) they rush to and from their meals without any time for relaxation; and (4) the meal hours (breakfast at eight, dinner at two, and supper at six) make it impossible for them properly to observe some most important laws of health. These faulty food habits and the excessive heat were held responsible.

As an emergency measure, classes were run from 8:30 to 12:30; menus were lightened, and meal hours were changed to breakfast at eight, lunch at one and dinner at 6:30. The results were most gratifying. The digestive disorders immediately cleared up. However, when the old regime was resumed these cases reported as usual—all out of proportion to what we see in the same age group elsewhere.

Dr. Emerson, a national authority on student health problems, in an extensive statistical study of students, found that faulty food habits headed the list of "Causes of Physical Un-Fitness." Dr. Tom Richards, College Physician at Harvard, stated to the writer last summer that at one time they had just such a problem as we have here, which was corrected by a change in the time of the meals. It is the opinion of the College Physician that the meal

EXPLANATION OF CLASS REUNION CHART—The principle of the reunion chart reproduced here is that, in groups of four, classes which were in college at the same time will hold their reunions simultaneously. In a cycle of twenty years each class will have reunited at least once with every one of the seven classes with which it was associated. Class reunions occur at varying intervals of four and five years.

To find the reunion year of any class, start with the class numeral in the left hand column and read toward the right. Each time that the class numerals are encountered the figure at the top of that column designates the year of such reunion. In the same columns will be found the numerals of all the classes reuniting in that year. This system is known as the Dix Plan of Class Reunions.

The Dix Plan of Class Reunions

Please note that by the NEW Plan of REUNION the following Classes are up for reunion this Commencement: '75, '76, '77, '78; '94, '95, '96, '97; '13, '14, '15, '16.

Plan NOW to meet your mates on The Hill, June 7, 1932.

From the College Physician

hours are probably the greatest single factor against the proper health and development of the students at Hampden-Sydney. This is also the opinion of Coaches Bernier and Smith.

"F. B."

We are most thankful that Hampden-Sydney did not contribute to the forty-one deaths charged to football this season. It is a fact, though, that more than two-thirds of the men who went out for the game here called on the college physician because of some kind of injury, usually a sprain or a skin abrasion. Lawson, who suffered a fracture of the malar bone, and Hogan, who suffered a fracture of the leg, were the most serious injuries. There were 186 Infirmary calls from athletic injuries during the season. This does not include emergency calls after the morning sick call, nor a number of calls due indirectly to this sport, nor does it keep any record of those students who went home or to hospitals for treatment. When we think of the possible danger to life, the expense often incurred, the enforced loss of time from school, and the frequent more or less permanent disabilities suffered, we realize that we are facing a problem that clamors for solution.

Football is unquestionably a wonderful sport, and has a definite value in the mental as well as the physical development of the student, and we can hardly visualize campus life without it. Yet we should see that boys do not participate until they are sufficiently mature and physically fit; that the officials enforce such rules and regulations as will minimize unnecessary risks and that coaches and physicians give careful attention to the players throughout the season. With keener consideration given to these three points, the great fall sport will become a saner and safer game for our youth.

Gifts to the Library

Miss Lyle Booker, Eminence, Kentucky, has donated to the College Library four copies of The History Quarterly of The Filson Club of Louisville, Kentucky.

These contain historical articles of value, one of them being a valuable article on George Rogers Clark, and another containing an account of the life of John Dabney Shane, who was born in Cincinnati in 1812, was a student at Hampden-Sydney College, Class of 1834 and became a famous collector of historical material.

Again we make grateful acknowledgment of the kindness of Mrs. Algemon Sydney Sullivan and Mr. George Hammond Sullivan of New York City. These kind friends who have already done so much to add to the beauty and the value of our Library continue to place us under additional obligations. Five pictures and handsome pieces of statuary have recently been received and have been arranged in attractive fashion by Miss Emma C. Venable. We are grateful for the gifts and thank the givers.

William Wirt Henry, Jr., 1877, has presented to the Library of Hampden-Sydney College the three-volume set of his father's Life of Patrick Henry. This is an autographed copy of the monumental work of Hon. William Wirt Henry, grandson of Patrick Henry, famous lawyer and man of letters, and trustee of Hampden-Sydney 1867-1900. The Library Staff prizes these volumes because of their intrinsic value and because of their association with the Henry family—friendly to Hampden-Sydney for more than a century and a half.

Through the generosity of Mrs. Matthew Bland Harrison of "Red Hill," daughter of Hon. William Wirt Henry of Richmond, Virginia, and great grand-daughter of Patrick Henry, our College Library has received the following pamphlets, which are very much appreciated:

Address on the Hundredth Anniversary of the Laying of the Corner Stone of the Capitol at Washington, D. C., September 18, 1893.

The Westminster Assembly—an address, delivered before East Hanover Presbytery, April 27, 1897.

Aaron Burr, an address delivered before the Virginia State Bar Association, August, 1897.

The First Legislative Assembly in America, an address before the American Historical Association, 1893.

The Early Settlement of Virginia, an address before the Virginia Historical Society, February 24, 1882.

These addresses were by William Wirt Henry.

Mrs. Harrison has also presented to the Library a sketch of Peter Francisco, soldier of the Revolution, by N. B. Winston.

Wallace Link, 1933, son of Rev. A. G. Link, Class of '86, has presented to the College Library the Minute Book of the Class of 1886. Dr. Link was Secretary of the Class. In the Minute Book are several old programs connected with Dr. Link's Class.

This Minute Book is highly valued.

Through the kindness of the sons of Mr. Matthew Walton Venable, 1866, Dr. Eggleston has secured for the Library a copy of Mr. Venable's book, "Beginnings of Literary Culture in the Ohio Valley." This valuable book was published in 1891 by Robert Clarke & Company, and is now out of print. In his kind letter announcing the gift, Mr. Bryant Venable says: "It is with great pleasure that I have succeeded in securing a copy through the kindness of my brother, Emerson Venable. This I am forwarding to you under separate cover with my compliments and best wishes."

Mr. Walton Venable—born in Prince Edward County, Virginia, April 8, 1847, died, Charleston, West Virginia, May 24, 1930—was very familiar with the people of the Ohio Valley and unusually competent to outline the history of the development of that section.

Miss Emma Venable has received a diploma of Joseph M. Venable of the class of 1810. It is dated April 25, 1810, and is signed by Moses Hoge, then President of the College, by Samuel Woodson Venable, Matthew Lyle, Goodrich Wilson, Henry E. Watkins, Wm. L. Venable, and Drury Lacy.

Dr. Venable was a surgeon in the War of 1812, and died in Indiana in 1838. Rev. Samuel Davies Hoge, professor of mathematics in the University of Ohio, was a classmate.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society and George Wythe

The Eastern Underwriter of November 27, 1931, has this to say (in part) about a recent visit to Virginia by Officials of The Equitable Life Assurance Society:

"One of the most striking stories . . . has to do with a trip which was recently made to classic historic points in Virginia by Frank L. Jones, Vice President, and William Alexander, Secretary, of The Equitable Life Assurance Society. The little journey has brought to the front . . . George Wythe. At Williamsburg they came upon the first reference to George Wythe. In Richmond further information was secured. A visit was then made to Hampden-Sydney College, one of the oldest Colleges in the United States, a former president of the College having been Mr. Alexander's grandfather. At Hampden-Sydney, Mr. Jones met Professor Freeman H. Hart of the Department of History. Mr. Jones arranged through Professor Hart to have his classes in American History make original research in connection with George Wythe's services to his country and to submit the best of these essays to Mr. Jones who agreed to give a cash prize for the essay which his committee should select as the best. Thirty-five students submitted essays after several months of research. So meritorious were three of the essays that it was decided to add to the amount of the prize money, in order that each of the student trio might receive consideration for his effort." Mr. Jones, we are informed, once Director of Education in Indiana has been in the habit of encouraging original research among college students.

Photographs of Patrick Henry

Dr. Eggleston has received the following letter from Mr. Charles Keck, the distinguished sculptor:

An Appreciative and Appreciated Letter

Broad Run, Virginia,
October 15, 1931.

DR. JOSEPH EGGLESTON,
Hampden-Sydney, Va.

DEAR DOCTOR:

I have had you and your fine College in mind for many years, fully alive to the good work you were doing. If I have seemed a renegade to my Alma Mater, you must charge it to conditions that forbid aught but verbal tribute. Now, I shall make some amends by sending you the Life of Patrick Henry, by my father, given to me by him and prized most highly of all my possessions. Also I wish to give my testimony to the high character of professors and students in my day. There was an entire absence of profanity or obscene stories or jokes and of drinking. The boys came from homes that impressed clean lives and language. I doubt if in all this broad land higher standards obtained than at old Hampden-Sydney. I am sure you do all in your power to uphold the old traditions—but you are in charge in a different age.

Sincerely yours,

W. W. HENRY.

Further Testimony to the Value of the Training Given at Hampden-Sydney

John Blake Campbell, '11, the son of Dr. W. C. Campbell, 1876, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church of Roanoke, Virginia, has for some years been in business as a Hydro-Electrical Engineer in Philadelphia, having taken his degree in Engineering at Cornell University. In the World War he was First Lieutenant in the Ninety-First Engineers. He has this to say about Hampden-Sydney College: "Most that I use out in the world to-day I learned at Hampden-Sydney. I did not learn it out of the books either. I learned it from the example of my professors, as manager of the magazine, in the Debating Society, in the Fraternity and out on the Campus. I learned a lot from being in the homes of the professors. When a man steps out into the world, about the first thing he must determine is whether he is going to fight for what is right or compromise. Can you imagine Uncle Jimmy Thornton compromising anything? I never get into a fight in business that my mind does not go back to Hampden-Sydney."

Alumni Notes

H. C. Bradshaw, 1930, continues to function as a reviewer of books of solid character in the columns of the News-Leader. In the issue of October 13, 1931, Mr. Bradshaw set forth the value of "My United States," a large volume from the pen of Frederic J. Stimson just published by Charles Scribner's Sons. The reviewer, while not agreeing with all the views expressed by Mr. Stimson, praises the author's style, is impressed by his erudition, and commends the publication as a whole.

President Eggleston has been active in organizing the Virginia Branch of the Huguenot Society of America. On October 15, 1931, he presided at the organization exercises held at "Manakin Town" in the Episcopal Church of Old Manakin, Powhatan County, Virginia. At this time, Mr. N. M. Couty of Ithaca, New York, delivered the principal address, constitution and by-laws were adopted, and new officers were installed.

Dr. Frank C. Brown, 1909, of Charleston, West Virginia and Dr. Graham Gilmer, 1909, pastor of the Rivermont Church of Lynchburg, Virginia officiated at the wedding of Miss Margaret Cabell Venable and the Rev. R. W. Wilson. The ceremony was performed in Dr. Gilmer's Church in the Hill City.

Earnest K. Emurian, 1931, a Junior in Union Theological Seminary, will direct the music at Grove Avenue Presbyterian Church in Richmond during the coming winter.

At a largely attended meeting of the Alumni of Richmond, Dr. Frank S. Johns, 1908, was elected President of the Richmond Chapter to succeed Dr. H. W. Blanton, 1912, who for two years had served the College so well. Alfred L. Lorraine, 1914, was chosen Vice President, and I. C. Munt, 1930, was named Secretary and Treasurer.

Dr. H. R. McIlwaine, 1885, State Librarian, was the Chairman of the Yorktown Sesquicentennial Committee of the Sons of the American Revolution; and with H. M. Smith, Jr., of the Richmond Bar, will represent the Virginia Society, Sons of the Revolution, at exercises to be held April 30, 1932, at Arlington, when a portrait of George Washington will be placed there by the Society of Colonial Wars. Dr. McIlwaine also made the principal address at the dedication of the New Library building at the State Teachers' College at Radford in December. His subject was "The History of Libraries in this State and their Future."

Samuel Lyle Graham, Jr., 1911, and Mrs. Natalie Graham (nee Hardy) report the birth of Sarah Ann Graham, on October 3, 1931. Mr. Graham is superintendent of buildings and grounds of the State Teachers' College, Farmville, Virginia.

John Bolling Reynolds, 1915, is now a member of the Department of Mathematics in the College of the City of New York. His address is 509 West 122d Street, New York City.

J. Gray McAllister, Jr., 1930, has a good record at Duke University. Since entering the University he has held valuable scholarships and has been teaching a section of Freshman Mathematics. He received his M. A. degree in June, 1931, and is now working for the Ph. D. Degree in Mathematics and Physics.

Philip H. Ropp, 1930, having received the Masters' Degree at Columbia University in June, 1931, is now working for the Doctors' Degree in Harvard. His address is 24 Wendell Street, Cambridge, Mass.

President George H. Denny, 1891, of the University of Alabama has recently been elected a member of the Senate of the Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity. His University is on a "boom." Approximately 4,300 students have been enrolled this year, and 850 out-of-state students were denied admission. Of the total number registered 875 were women. The University of Alabama thus has the largest student body south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi.

At the fall meeting of Winchester Presbytery, held at Hancock, Maryland, Dr. J. R. Graham, '84, made a missionary address on "The Cost of Becoming a Christian in China"; Dr. J. B. Bittinger, '83, was—on account of ill health—released from the care of the Gerrardstown Group of Churches; and Dr. F. T. McFaden made an address in behalf of Hampden-Sydney College.

Cortlandt B. Woods, 1880, in a personal letter from Tampico, Mexico, of September 17, 1931, writes: "I have just learned that I have another grandson, William H. Woods, Jr., born in Houston, Texas; he is the eleventh grandchild and number twenty-four in the tribe headed by myself; so you see I have a lot to make life worth living."

The Record-Advertiser of Halifax, Virginia, of September 17, 1931, carries a long and interesting article in regard to the Public School System of Halifax County. Mr. H. J. Watkins, 1869, is the Superintendent and his picture represents him as hale and hearty. Ten colleges supply the male teachers of Halifax. Hampden-Sydney leads in the total number of its graduates in the schools of the County. Besides Superintendent Watkins himself, there are: E. L. Dupuy, Jr., 1916, Principal of Volens High School; C. H. Friend, 1886, Superintendent of South Boston Schools; J. E. Lowery, 1900, Principal of Oak Level High School; W. S. Adkisson, Jr., 1929, teacher at Volens; and T. S. Wilson, 1931, teacher at Cluster Springs.

Elizabeth Whitfield Brittain is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rufus Brittain and she was born October 4, 1931.

Bernard H. Jones, 1928, instructor in Duke University, North Carolina, reports through the Clarke Courier the birth of a daughter. Mrs. Jones was Miss Ruth Glynn of Buffalo, New York. The young lady's name is Ruth Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Dupuy, Jr., now of Halifax County, announce the arrival of a daughter, Catherine Little, born October 9, 1931, in Farmville.

Henry Carrington Owen, is a new arrival in the home of Dr. and Mrs. John Atkinson Owen, of Turbeville, Virginia. Dr. Owen is a graduate of the class of 1899; and Mrs. Owen, as Miss Mary Carrington, spent the years of her childhood at Hampden-Sydney.

Dr. Wyndham Bolling Blanton stands well to the front among the gifted young Alumni of the Old College. He graduated at Hampden-Sydney in 1910; the University of Virginia in 1912; and the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1916. He has studied in Berlin, France, and the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. He is now practicing his profession in Richmond, Virginia, and in addition serves as Associate Professor of Medicine, Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. Blanton is the author of "Medicine in Virginia in the Seventeenth Century" and "A Manual of Normal Physical Signs." His latest book, "Medicine in Virginia in the Eighteenth Century," is just off the press and the "story" in the Richmond News-Leader of December 17, 1931, has this to say about the volume:

"Garrett & Massie, Richmond publishers, have announced "Medicine in Virginia in the Eighteenth Century," by Wyndham B. Blanton, M. D., of Richmond.

The book is published under the auspices of the Medical Society of Virginia. It is considered one of the most interesting of the recent issues of Virginia because it constitutes not only a story of medicine and medical men of the colony, but a cross section of the lives of the Colony's more important personalities.

Dr. Blanton was being congratulated also upon a historical work of more than Virginia interest since during the eighteenth century many medical men of the colony were national figures.

After a review of the status of the medical profession at the beginning of the century and of its major changes during the period, Dr. Blanton records the story of medical education, of the major epidemics and of medical and other scientific writing in the colony. He also describes the problems of plantation practice, and of the waves of quackery which afflicted this section as well as the remainder of the world between 1700 and 1800.

CAREERS DESCRIBED

Colonial hospitals, the war records of prominent physicians of the colony and the infant commonwealth, medical legislation and the careers of famous Virginia Physicians also are described in vivid detail.

Dr. Blanton's story presents many interesting sidelights about two noted amateur physicians, William Byrd and Thomas Jefferson, and his comments in the light of modern knowledge upon the ailments of Virginia heroes should be of great value to biographers of the future.

The book is liberally illustrated with portraits, facsimiles of diplomas, advertisements, title pages of long-forgotten books and other items, including photographs of museum pieces. It is seven and one-half by ten and one-half inches in dimensions, contains 500 pages, and has a cover design by Charles W. Smith, Richmond artist.

The edition is limited to 1,750 numbered copies, of which 500 will be available for sale.

The Mississippi Chapter

During the meeting of the Mississippi Synod, at Jackson, September 15-17, 1931, two gatherings, in connection with luncheons, of Hampden-Sydney Alumni were held. At the second of these, it was decided to organize the

Robert D. Bedinger, President of Mississippi Chapter

Mississippi Chapter of the Hampden-Sydney Alumni Association and Robert D. Bedinger, '06, Fondren, Mississippi, was elected President and Graham F. Campbell, '14, West Point, Mississippi, was chosen as Secretary-Treasurer. Other Alumni in attendance were: John B. Bittinger, Jr., '21, Amory; A. L. Bondurant, '84, Oxford; Samuel P. Hawes, '88, Charleston; William B. Hooker, '26, Vaiden; A. A. Little, '80, Meridian; Frank

The importance of "paying the annual dues" was mentioned and already the "baby chapter" is leading the procession in this important respect. To quote from a letter from the newly-elected president: "There is a great deal of loving interest for the Old College among Mississippi Alumni and we shall conserve that interest by being tied together in this organization." (At their meetings, much interest was shown in the growth of the College and it is interesting to record that the majority of the chapter think three hundred is "plenty big." Three were of the opinion that the numbers might be allowed to go to five hundred when the College was properly equipped to handle that number. However, the overwhelming sentiment in "Old Miss," as elsewhere, is for the College to STAY SMALL.)

Too much praise cannot be given to "Bob" Bedinger for his enthusiastic desire to start things for Hampden-Sydney in the far South from which territory she has often drawn students. He and Graham Campbell make an admirable team and the loyal sons of Alma Mater have responded well to their leadership. President Eggleston and the Alumni Secretary are planning to visit the Chapter at their meeting in 1932.

The Valley Chapter

Saturday night, December 12, in the Social Rooms of the First Presbyterian Church, Staunton, Virginia, there gathered twenty-eight Alumni and friends of Hampden-Sydney, Dr. William E. Hudson, '95, presided at the long table well supplied with the good food prepared by some of the ladies of the church. The toastmaster required each one to stand and tell "who he was, what he was doing, and when he was at Hampden-Sydney." This was done in witty fashion—even by those who had never been to Hampden-Sydney!

The business of the evening brought on a discussion of the advisability of enlarging the borders of the Old

Augusta-Highland Alumni Chapter. The members had had this under advisement for some time and those present were unanimous in their desire to take in more territory. The Alumni in Lexington, Harrisonburg, Waynesboro and other places not too distant from Staunton were notified and invited to the meeting and nearly all points were represented. On motion it was decided to change the name of the Chapter to "The Valley Chapter." Dr. Hudson was elected President and L. B. Stephenson, Jr., '26, Secretary. Meetings will be held at the places where Alumni are clustered.

President Eggleston and Secretary Walker made talks on the College and the Alumni work. The three major objectives of the Alumni Chapters were stressed. It was learned that there are now fifteen boys at the College from the territory of the new chapter; it is planned to double that number for next session.

The Richmond Meetings

By CHRISTIAN MUNT, Secretary

The meetings of the Richmond Chapter of the Hampden-Sydney Alumni Association have been held this fall. The first was on the 2d of October and was attended by thirty men. At this gathering the following officers were elected for the year: Dr. Frank S. Johns, President; A. L. Lorraine, Vice President; and Christian Munt, Secretary. Dr. H. Wallace Blanton, the retiring President, was given a rising vote of thanks for the fine way in which he had served the College as leader of the Richmond Chapter.

On the night before the Richmond game, November 13th, the second meeting was held. This was a dinner-meeting at the Commonwealth Club and was attended by more than seventy-five Alumni. This was pronounced by those who have been attending Alumni gatherings for years, the most enthusiastic ever held in Richmond. The three newly-elected members of the Board of Trustees of the College—Mr. Herbert W. Jackson, Doctor Ben R. Lacy, Mr. John H. Reed—were present as was President Joseph D. Eggleston.

The speaker of the evening was Doctor Edgar G. Gammon, '05, now pastor of the Myers Park Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, North Carolina. In a most interesting and constructive manner Doctor Gammon discussed, "What Hampden-Sydney Means to Her Alumni and What the Alumni Should Mean to Hampden-Sydney." Other speakers on the program were: A. B. Dickinson, Judge Louis Epes, George L. Walker, Coach Charles A. Bernier, Dr. J. Gray McAllister, and the three new members of the Board.

Dr. Johns presided in his gracious manner and the splendid spirit of the meetings was in large part, a reflection of his own untiring zeal in all matters for the highest welfare of the Old College.

Roanoke Meeting

On October twenty-second, the Alumni of Roanoke held a meeting for the purpose of electing officers and to "talkup" the Home-Coming occasion to be held on "The Hill," October 24th. James P. Hart, '92, was chosen President, Bruce Buford, '00, Vice President, and C. L. Crockett, '19, Secretary. The men were in an optimistic frame of mind on account of the record enrollment at the College. An interesting discussion of the future size of the College was held. It was the consensus of those present that three hundred was "large enough."

All were urged by the Alumni Secretary to attend Home-Coming and many stated it as their intention to be present on that occasion.

President Eggleston addressed a large gathering of the Presbyterian men of the city that night and met with the Hampden-Sydney group after his meeting was over.

Bluefield Chapter

At a meeting of the Bluefield Chapter in the office of Edwin C. Wade, October 14, the following officers were elected:

EDWIN C. WADE, President.

GEORGE RICHARDSON, Vice President.

MERRIMAN S. SMITH, Secretary.

An interesting "pastoral letter" from Robert K. Brock, President of the General Alumni Association, was read. A general discussion followed in which these items were uppermost: 1. The Endowment Fund for the College; 2. Home-Coming; 3. The Alumni work.

Those present: George Richardson, R. H. Moore, Rhea Blake, Dennis Clark, W. C. Pollock, Merriman S. Smith, J. L. Thornton and Edwin C. Wade.

New York Chapter

By H. D. MacPHERSON, Secretary

The New York Alumni Chapter of Hampden-Sydney College held its Fifth Annual banquet in the Grill Room of the Princeton Club, at 39 East 39th Street, on the evening of December 8th, at 7:00 P. M.

There were fifteen present for the occasion, including Professor Freeman H. Hart from "The Hill." After an enjoyable banquet, consisting of the proverbial "soup to nuts" menu, Professor Hart addressed those fortunate Tigers who had found it possible to attend the annual dinner. Professor Hart's talk was indeed stimulating, and decidedly interesting. One would never realize that this emissary from the College campus was not an Alumnus of Hampden-Sydney. He spoke with such feeling and enthusiasm that it was a joy to hear him. I believe few Alumni could reflect much keener loyalty than does Professor Hart.

We were especially pleased to hear of the most recent news from the campus. The matter of the standing of Hampden-Sydney was discussed at some length, and we were happy to hear that our endowment had been increased considerably within the last several months. To achieve our goal much financial assistance is needed yet, and all of the New York chapter present departed with the feeling that they would endeavor to do anything possible to lend this assistance.

Most everyone present had a few words to say on some subject or another, and our meeting was one of those enjoyable events on which we shall look back with considerable pleasure. Those attending were the following:

Professor Hart	C. F. Fitzgerald	Alexander Donnan
H. G. Richardson	F. T. McFaden	J. B. Reynolds
S. B. Forbus	R. B. Hudson	John B. Henneman
M. G. Latimer	J. E. Staehlin	H. D. MacPherson
Wm. Middlethorn	Page Northington	H. I. Brock

New York, December 9th.

Home-Coming

The Annual Home-Coming Celebration was held this year on Saturday, October 24th. President Eggleston presided at the Rally of Students, Faculty, and Alumni held in McIlwaine Hall. The invocation was by Dr. W. D.

Reynolds, Class of 1887, returned Missionary from Korea. The welcome to the Alumni was given by Frank King, president of the Student Council and the S. C. A. This was followed by a demonstration of well-timed cheering and singing, led by Joe Perry, head-cheer leader, and his assistants, Tommy Garber and Norris Blake.

Doctor Eggleston presented President Robert K. Brock of the Alumni Association who introduced Alfred K. ("Dicky") Dudley, '27, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, who made the "pep talk." In his introduction, Mr. Brock reminded the audience that no student of recent years had thrown himself more heartily into the various campus activities than had the famous football star who had attracted attention throughout the country by his remarkable performance on the gridiron. While keeping well-abreast of his classes, Dudley had shone brightly in athletics, dramatics, debate, and the activities of the Christian Association.

Speaking informally, Mr. Dudley stressed the tremendous longing in the heart of each true Hampden-Sydney man to come back to "The Hill." He ascribed this "pull" to the inner power gathered, almost unconsciously, from the associations at the Old College. He expressed the hope that the College would ALWAYS remain small in numbers to allow that intimacy between Faculty and students which counted so strongly in the making of real men.

A number of messages were read from Alumni; two of particular interest were those from our nestors, Colonel

Athletics

By CHARLES A. BERNIER, Athletic Director

THE OUT-GOING SENIORS

When Captain "Billy" Powell led the Garnet and Gray Tigers against the Red and Blue Spiders of Richmond University, Saturday, November 14th, he brought to a close a brilliant career and proved conclusively why coaches and newspaper men picked him for the center position on the mythical Virginia Conference team. He has been a daring and aggressive player and he has led his men in that give-all kind of spirit that marks the born leader.

Thomas Latane Toone came with Captain Powell from John Marshall High School in Richmond, Virginia. He was too light for the team there, but he entered Death Valley with the determination to learn the game and build himself up to stand the hard knocks of the gridiron. From the quarter back position he directed his men and ran interference for them. There was never a more unselfish player than "Tommy." He seldom carried the ball himself—not that he couldn't, but he was satisfied to block and thus pave the way for the other fellows. Football seems justified when it can bring out such qualities of character as unselfishness, devotion, and loyalty to teammates. Because of his size, Toone was overlooked by several newspaper men for Conference honors, but those of us who saw the little fellow develop, regard him as the best blocker and tackler in the State.

Another little player deserving much credit, is Roy Hogan of Bedford, Virginia. He was inexperienced when he came to Hampden-Sydney and weighed less than 150 pounds. He found the going difficult but it was amazing to see him outshine big, seasoned linemen of reputation. Love of the game made him a close student of its many details. After playing four years with hardly a scratch, Roy was injured in the Lynchburg game. He was greatly missed in the Richmond game on which contest he had so "set his heart." Popular with his fellow-students, he was greatly missed by them while recovering from his injury. He played the game hard, but always like a gentleman.

Charles Atkinson Garden, Prospect, Virginia, did something for the team this year that stamps him above the average player. He was a full back of first rating, never having played in any other position, yet he volunteered to play in the line just to help the team situation. He played a bang-up game at left tackle with his defensive work outstanding. Newspaper men and coaches gave him a place on the Conference team. As Garden expects to coach next year, we predict that he will add his name to the distinguished list of outstanding Hampden-Sydney men in that profession.

Joseph Kenneth Bradford, Staunton, Virginia, is another of our "Pony Players," weighing, as he does, about 140 pounds. Operating from the half back position on the 1931 team, Joe featured with open-field running and diagnosis of the opponents' play. He was among the high-point scorers of the State and has reflected through four years the good basic training received at Staunton High. He is the clever Captain of this year's basket ball team.

John Elliott Harwood, Newport News, Virginia, is from an "athletic family," being brother to "Flicky" Harwood who starred in football and baseball at William and Mary. John shared with George Krupka the assignments for left end this year and he played a strong game on defense and was the best pass-receiving end on the squad. When it is remembered that Harwood had had no high school experience and did not come out for football here until his sophomore year, his making the team is a tribute to his willingness to learn and to work hard for the good of the unit.

Benjamin Peter Franklin hails from Danville, Virginia, where he received his preparation for College at the well-known Danville Military Institute. "Ben" is one of our few "big boys" and his play at left guard this year was well delivered.

The two Crawley brothers, James Wilbur and Kenner Copenhaver, make their home on "The Hill." They have been two faithful players with Jim the more aggressive and stronger. His good blocking and tackling enabled him to take care of right end in fine shape. Center was Kenner's position. In a way, he was unfortunate as he had to battle against an outstanding center and Captain of the team. This boy was never hurt, due largely to his rhythm and timing in execution. Both these boys are baseball players of ability. Play never is allowed to interfere with their work. Gentlemanly conduct characterizes them at all times.

Another of our Seniors who deserves lots of credit is Elmer Russell Ritz of Hancock, Maryland. He had never played football; besides he was small and awkward. Little attention was paid to him and it is a wonder he did not stop coming out. However, he stayed with the game in grim determination. That appealed to me. I checked up on him closely and found he was doing a whale of a job for a man his size. When Hogan was hurt, I turned the job over to Elmer and he played a fine game. He works hard, putting a maximum-plus effort into whatever he does.

Our Manager this year was Charles Frederick Friedman of Charleston, West Virginia. He possesses a pleasing personality, good business judgment, and plenty of resourcefulness. In dealing with the officials of other institutions, he contributed his full share in making them good friends of Hampden-Sydney.

Basket Ball

As indicated elsewhere, Joseph K. Bradford, Staunton, Virginia, is the Captain of our basket ball team this season. He plays a fast and accurate game and the campaign this year promises to be a success. He will have veterans, Handy Moore, Maynard Berryman, and Finley Talbot to team with him. There are several good soph and frosh prospects from which to choose the fifth man. The schedule will be the longest ever undertaken by a Tiger quint. Twenty-four games will occupy the winter activities of the "hardwood artists."

Joseph K. Bradford, Captain Basket Ball, 1931-'32
